NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP WOMBACH 2025

Last weekend, the German Championships took place in Wombach. As always in Wombach, the races were well organized. The XCC Championships were on Friday, and the XCO on Sunday. In the XCC race, there was no U23 classification; we all started in the Elite class. The short-race course was very demanding and fast. Right from the start, six riders broke away: Ronja Eibl (German Champion), Kira Böhm (Vice-Champion), Lia Schrievers, Nina Graf, and myself. My legs felt great, and I could keep up easily. "There's a lot to achieve today," I thought, until I crashed on the fourth lap. My tires simply slipped on the dusty track, and I flew between two trees into the bushes. By the time I gathered myself, the five girls were a minute ahead and gone. That's how the finish played out as well.

On Sunday, I competed in the XCO race despite the bruises and the bump on my shin. This race had an U23 classification. The dusty and slippery course had countless turns, small jumps, and a rock garden. We started 2 minutes behind the elite women. There was a start loop and 4 laps to complete. Sina van Thiel, Finja Lipp, and I pulled away from the others right in the start loop. In the first lap, Finja fell behind, and then in the third lap, I had to let Sina go.

I'm getting better at riding; it's not far off now!

The right direction!

Bis bald
